Neon has the ability to influence our mood and perception of a space. A dimly lit alleyway adorned with neon signs can become an urban oasis, invoking a sense of mystery and excitement. On the contrary, a brightly lit neon-lit street can create an atmosphere of vivacity and celebration.

The Translation of Neonness

Translating the concept of neonness into words is no easy feat. It encompasses a multitude of feelings and sensations that go beyond mere aesthetics. Neonness is about embracing the vibrant, dynamic, and energetic aspects of life.

Think of a bustling city street at night, adorned with neon signs advertising various businesses. The energy and liveliness emanating from these signs reflect the essence of neonness. It is a state of being fully present, absorbed in the moment and embracing the excitement of urban life.

Neonness is not limited to the physical realm; it extends to our actions and interactions with others. It encourages us to step out of our comfort zones, take risks, and embrace the unknown. Just as a neon sign stands out amidst a sea of ordinary lights, neonness urges us to stand out from the crowd and make a lasting impression.

A cultural and philosophical history of neon, from Paris in the twentieth century to the perpetually switched-on present day.

For most of us, the word neon conjures images of lights, colors, nightlife, and streets. It evokes the poetry of city nights. For Luis de Miranda, neon is a subject of philosophical curiosity. Being and Neonness is a cultural and philosophical history of neon, from early twentieth-century Paris to the electric, perpetually switched-on present day Manhattan. It is an inspired journey through a century of night, deciphering the halos of the past and the reflections of the present to shed light on the future.

Invented in Paris in 1912, neon first appeared on a modest but arresting sign outside a small barbershop; the sign lit up number 14, Boulevard Montmartre, attracting so many passersby that the barber's revenues soon doubled. A century later, neon is no longer just a sign; it is a mythic object—a metonymy of contemporary identity and a metaphor for the present, signifying the ubiquity of commerce and the tautology of hypermodernity. But perhaps the noble gas of neon whispers something more, something deeper? In ten short, poetic yet precise chapters, de Miranda explores the neon lights of the twentieth century. He considers, among other historical curiosities, the neon compulsions of the Italian Futurists; the Soviet program of “neonization”; the Nazi's deployment of neon for propaganda purposes; Baudelaire's “halo” and Benjamin's “aura”; neon as a gas and crystallized chaos; neon and power; neon and capitalism—all of this backlit by an original reading of Sartre's Being and Nothingness. This English edition has been thoroughly revised and adapted from the French edition, L'être et le neon.
