Unmasking the Origins

The story behind the Homecoming Queen Carter House Girls dates back several decades, tracing its roots to the founding of Carter House High School itself. Legend has it that during the school's early days, a young girl named Amelia Carter, known for her radiant beauty and compassionate heart, singlehandedly started the tradition as a means to celebrate both inner and outer beauty.

Amelia believed that the Homecoming Queen title should be a symbol of not only physical beauty but also intelligence, kindness, and leadership skills. With this vision in mind, she strived to empower her fellow female students by creating a platform for them to showcase their multifaceted talents and build a strong sense of community within the school. Thus, the Homecoming Queen Carter House Girls was born, standing as a testament to the power of unity and the limitless potential of ambitious young women.
