Grieving and alone Rose is left in the care of the Earl of Blakethorpe, a man who would use her. A good friend steals her away but is she safe or have her worries only just begun?

Rose has escaped from the terrible man who claimed her as his ward. Now her world is but one room. Her only company the strange Nicholas Robshaw. How long can he keep her hidden and safe?

Rose knows that the strange man who is helping her is putting himself at considerable risk. Though she is grateful, she cannot understand his strange ways and almost childish sense of humor. Is the tiny room he has her in, just another prison?

Nicholas agreed to save the young lady because it was the right thing to do. What he didn't expect was to find himself falling in love with her. It brings him great guilt for she was taken advantage of before, and now here he is, having feelings for someone so vulnerable.

Will Nicholas be able to hide Rose from the Earl?
