Once they complete their education, veterinarians begin their careers in veterinary clinics, hospitals, or research facilities. They often work long hours, responding to emergencies and providing round-the-clock care for their patients.

Love That Transcends All

Veterinarians witness the power of love between humans and animals every single day. They see owners going above and beyond to ensure the best possible care for their pets, often going to great lengths to save their lives.

One heartwarming story comes from Dr. Emily, a veterinarian who was faced with an adorable Labrador named Max. Max had been diagnosed with a terminal illness, and his owner tearfully brought him in for his final visit. Dr. Emily, moved by their bond, decided to organize a special farewell for Max. She arranged a small gathering in the clinic's garden, where Max's family and friends could spend their last moments together. It was a heartfelt tribute to a dog who had brought so much joy to his loved ones.

Losses and Farewells

Despite their best efforts, veterinarians also have to confront the painful reality of loss. They empathize with grieving owners and understand the profound impact losing a beloved pet can have on their lives.

Dr. Mark, a veterinarian with over two decades of experience, recalls a particularly heart-wrenching moment when he had to deliver the news of a terminal illness to a devoted dog owner named Sarah. The bond between Sarah and her dog, Bailey, was undeniable. It was a bond forged through years of companionship and unconditional love. Dr. Mark offered comfort to Sarah, assuring her that he would do everything possible to make Bailey's remaining days comfortable and filled with love.

Finding Hope in the Darkest Moments

Despite the emotional toll, veterinarians remain beacons of hope in their patients' darkest moments. They witness miraculous recoveries that restore faith even in the bleakest circumstances.

Dr. Kevin, an equine veterinarian, narrates a story of resilience and hope in the life of a miniature horse named Charlie. Charlie was brought to the veterinary clinic with severe leg injuries after an accident. The prognosis seemed grim, but Dr. Kevin and his team refused to give up. Through months of dedicated care and rehabilitation, Charlie defied all odds and made a full recovery. Today, Charlie happily roams the pastures, a symbol of hope and determination.

Their Dedication Knows No Bounds

Veterinarians not only care for pets but also extend their compassion to wildlife. They work diligently to protect and rehabilitate animals affected by natural disasters, habitat loss, and injury. Their love for all creatures, big and small, is truly commendable.

Dr. Sarah, a wildlife veterinarian, shares a story of rescuing a young eagle injured in a forest fire. The eagle, named Freedom, required extensive medical treatment and rehabilitation. Dr. Sarah and her team painstakingly nursed Freedom back to health and monitored his progress until he was ready to be released back into the wild. Witnessing the magnificent bird take flight once again filled their hearts with pure joy and reaffirmed their purpose.

Veterinarians - The Guiding Lights

Veterinarians do not just heal animals; they also guide and educate pet owners to ensure their companions have the happiest and healthiest lives possible.

Dr. Lisa, a veterinarian specializing in exotic animals, recalls an experience with a worried reptile owner named John. John had adopted a pet iguana named Spike, but was concerned about Spike's declining health. Dr. Lisa patiently listened to John's concerns and provided him with valuable advice on proper diet, habitat, and veterinary care. With Dr. Lisa's guidance, Spike made a remarkable recovery, and John's gratitude was immeasurable.

Veterinarians play a crucial role in our lives, providing care, empathy, and hope for our furry companions. Their stories of love, loss, and hope remind us of the extraordinary bond shared between humans and animals. Let us remember to show our appreciation for these unsung heroes who dedicate their lives to keeping our beloved pets healthy and happy.

A moving memoir of a life spent in the company of animals—a veterinarian sheds light on the universal experience of loving, healing, and losing our beloved pets, and the many ways they change our lives.

The pursuit of a childhood dream has taken Suzy Fincham-Gray on a journey in veterinary medicine from pastoral farms on the English–Welsh border to emergency rooms in urban American animal hospitals, with thousands of stories collected along the way. In this unforgettable literary debut, she writes about some of the most emotionally challenging and rewarding cases of her career.

Like many physicians, Fincham-Gray tends to see her patients at often life-or-death moments. While dramatic, these stories expand into deeper explorations of our complex, profound relationships with the animals in our lives. She describes the satisfaction of diagnosing and treating difficult diseases and the universal experience of loving a pet, and—inevitably—raises questions about their end-of-life care. We meet Grayling, an Irish wolfhound in need of critical treatment; we learn about the fulfillment of caring for a chronically ill pet from the story of Zeke, a silver-brown tabby cat who likes to eat just a little too much; and we fall in love with Monty and Emma, Fincham-Gray’s own adopted cat and dog, who change her life in joyful and unexpected ways. Fincham-Gray depicts the sleepless nights she spends waiting for her pager to call her to the clinic, the cutthroat competition among residents, and what it’s really like to care for patients who can’t advocate for themselves.

Warm and humorous, Suzy Fincham-Gray is a rare breed—a clinician with an intimate, elegant literary style. She writes with the same tenderness she brings to her patients, whose needs she must meet with her mind, her hands, and her heart.

“Suzy Fincham-Gray gives readers rare insight into the making of a compassionate doctor. Her passion for both science and the animals she cares for, combined with her eloquence as a writer, made me want Suzy as both my dogs’ veterinarian and my own friend.”—Teresa J. Rhyne, author of the #1 New York Times bestseller The Dog Lived (and So Will I)
